Jason,

Just as an FYI, one of Laura Jenkins primary responsibilities is to ensure the mine site crew is not constantly interrupted by 'visitors' wanting to tour the site, or media wanting to interview staff, etc. We want them to be free of outside distractions and be able to focus on the work that needs to be completed before winter sets in. In addition, work at the site is ramping up such that areas of the mine that can actually be toured are extremely limited. Thanks, lw

Jason- Laura Williams, our Media Officer, is traveling to Durango tomorrow and is planning to help Steve Way as PIO at the mine. I know there was concern when I was possibly going there- what does Laura need to know or do before joining Steve at the mine? Can she obtain the required safety training from IC that she needs. I'm sure she will be provided with personal protective equipment.

Laura- Have you had safety training and/or Hazwoper training before?

All,

I need to ask you to help me ensure that anyone (visitors or IMT staff) who plans on visiting the mine is to have personal protective equipment with them. Visitors who are "touring", are currently required to wear a hard hat, safety shoes, safety vest as well as safety shoes. We are working on attaining additional sets that folks can use but we currently have 9 full sets available. Thank you.
